

I will never for love & no money's sake, have the heaviest part of the work fall on your shoulders. I will not be so absurd as to make it my business to just make out a word of what I the advocat. What is desirable is that to find a paper should so every where. The pains taken in collecting funds for the sake of Peshawar and interest, would be better repaid by procuring from one to fifty subscribers in a neighborhood?

more to you on hoard blue paper, & in the twinkling of an eye Luckyly it was out of a prepared mind. I did not however say all I thought, about the locall. I only replied to your question. It seemed as if I ought not to be so absurd as to think I could give advice. But if I lived in England I should make it my business to just the advocat. What is desirable is that to find a paper should so every where. The pains taken in collecting funds for the clearer it becomes, that she were spending too much time & work upon an instrumentally. It was written to 20 years ago. Not to this time. I dare say we shall be distressed enough for the money, but that is not of the importance. What is lovely & desirable in the case of the water, to find a source to raise the means of support for our cause. It does not look justly in us to prevent it, or instead of it we may hope to be strong enough to do other work; for I am 1858 by no means sure but that I am capable of more than you can give. But If money were needed for Agents agents & help, I doubt or collecto-rial could there be special fairs in these places? I am so sensible of the ill effect of doubt that I am not going to send any of our (your) remaining stock to the same old towns this year, but make it the means of rousing new ones, & forming an anti-slavery nucleus to do anti-slavery work. you will see all the Am. Newspapers filled with the "great revival" now in progress. If it were all a real work of grace, slavery would be abolished next year.

 But I hope some good will come out of it. Emotion is hopeful - however pitiful to see rogues taking advantage of it, to fund its own fist - just as so many do of the anti-slavery cause to get their hands by it.

I think the subscribers to Travels Douglas & Julia F. F. F. should read

I have been thinking of writing you for some time but have been so busy that I could not find time. I have been thinking of writing you for some time but have been so busy that I could not find time.

but this is conjectural - still the prof. is certainly thinner.

is so readily as I did. They could not feel to suppose the thing possible.

You will have seen how great is our progress, by the removal of Loins. Measure it by British usages. (if it were possible to suppose a highly respectable British law official doing such a thing.) I imagine Queen Lords & Commons removing here by address, because you & Mr Webb & Mrs Bingham insisted upon it.
Should you not know you had somehow or another obtained an immense footing for your principles in the public mind? This is what comes out the the Bankruptcy of the great Massachusetts Cotton Company last year. They have lost their prestige: can neither buy bribe nor flatter. I am working very hard, of course, to put all right in consequence of the change in our mode of financing. We (me & mine) shall have to work a great deal more constantly & systematically. But that is right.
